Our Lord Jesus Christ, King of the Universe

Sister Magdalena is a religious sister friend of mine whose family hails from the Houston, Texas area. She recently wrote me: "Greetings from Houston! I pray all is well with you in life and ministry. I am doing all right and fared well with the hurricane. However, I am writing to ask for your prayers for my brother and relatives that suffered from flooding when Hurricane Harvey hit landfall a second time and did terrible damage to Port Arthur, my old hometown. Thank you for your prayers." When Deacon John Buckley died on August 27, Saint Francis of Assisi Church hosted his funeral Mass on September 1. His prayer card cited spiritual thoughts from Saint Monica to her son Saint Augustine, shortly before her death in Ostia (modern Turkey) in 387. As he grew flustered with her illness and impending death, Monica reflected: "Bury my body wherever you will; let not care of it cause you any concern. One thing only I ask you, that you remember me at the altar of the Lord wherever you may be." These two examples of prayerful requests lie at the heart of intercession within our Catholic faith, reflecting either an individual or communal wish. When Masses are offered for the faithful departed, the same religious mandates are employed of God intervening directly in our lives. The mystery of these requests in the spiritual sphere produce differing results. Recently a family desired prayers for a woman battling cancer reports, and the concluding result was optimistic. Another family requested the same for a wonderful man, and the end was not as pleasant an outcome. The human touch is so critical, and our Catholic tradition still mandates such encounters through our prayer and sacramental life. What a contrast to a culture that prizes itself in anonymity and sterile exchanges. Examples abound.

When Facebook or other social media engines replace the deeper connections of letters or connecting phone calls. Android smartphones in 2018 will feature eye iris scanning, rather than password codes. Imagine the potential security hassles in these new technological endeavors. How about this bizarre entry from the "New York Post" section entitled "Weird But True." My head still spins with this one: "A Japanese tech firm has developed a Buddhist priest robot designed to give blessings at funerals. The plastic automaton - which is named Pepper - can step in when a human priest isn't available, according to SoftBank, the company that designed the machine. It will cost about $450 to rent one when they hit the markets." Even Major League Baseball is giving serious thought to eliminating the home plate umpire, in order to sanitize imperfect human decisions on called balls and strikes. Some of the greatest moments in baseball history are managers, like Billy Martin of the New York Yankees and Tommy Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers, kicking up dust storms toward umpires they were at odds with.

The ripple effects of technological anonymity grow ever present. We can avoid human contact in the banking system with electronic transactions, riding the bridges through EZ pass systems, calling in pizza orders online, or even attending church but racing out before the conclusion prayer in order to bypass human contact which more often than not emanates from this growing desire to make deals without human intervention. The sacraments of the Church, particularly penance and the Eucharist necessitate, require such a sacred outlook. Maybe fifteen years ago, a guy asked me if he could confess his sins over the phone. While wanting to oblige, I simply could not. Church rules do not allow such interpersonal disconnect.

Perhaps our frenzied society contributes to this massive dilemma, which certainly plagues the life of a priest also. Recently I uncovered a picture "with a perfectly sized cavity in its side, a half-eaten crabapple offers a tiny harvest mouse an especially sweet hiding spot in Wimborne, England. The apple had been gobbled by a hornet." The need for solace, a peaceful ground space to retreat into, is what people crave for today facing the real problems about the future. We need to be more peaceful, and not allow any stranger at all to derail us from our future spiritual visions and lifestyles as dictated by God. The peaceful pose in England of a harvest mouse serves as a template for future clergy discourse. Our pets, dog is the reverse of God, teach us the sanctity of priests and faithful parishioners trying to live serenely and authentically. We all need to escape from the burdens of our schedule commitments, which is why I pencil in these retreats and travel opportunities on occasion. When priests, sisters and God's people are all work and no play, seeking that of the intimate which God created us out of, our interpersonal lives suffers precipitously. In a shade over a week is the parish trip to Austria, Germany, and Switzerland. Israel follows a month later, before my plan to ease off on these trips for awhile. God bless you. Father Bill

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS GIVING TREE

Our Giving Tree is located in the back of the church. Please pick an angel (or angels) and bring your unwrapped gift that corresponds to the information on the angel and place it under the tree. We will be sharing your donations with the clients of the Deacon Jack Seymour Food Pantry at St. Francis on Friday and Saturday, December 8th & 9th and 15th & 16th. The total number of children registered ages 1-12 at the pantry is 813. Our need is great and, as always, we appreciate your generosity.

TODAY

OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST, KING OF THE UNIVERSE

First Reading: Ezekiel 34:11-12, 15-17

This passage beautifully describes how the Lord God, as shepherd, will tend his flock. He will rescue those who are lost, bring back those who stray, heal the sick, and "pasture" all.

Second Reading: 1 Corinthians 15:20-26, 28

Paul once again stresses the significance of Christ's resurrection in the total divine plan, emphasizing that Christ's rising means that those who believe in him will also rise after death. Christianity, he argues, is meaningless if it concerns only this life on earth. In the end, even death will be destroyed, and "God will be all in all."

Gospel: Matthew 25:31-46

With words both poetic and vivid, Jesus tells the disciples that since he is present in all people, whatever they do to "one of my least brothers" they do to him; and whatever they fail to do to his "least," they fail to do to him.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY FAMILY

O Jesus, look graciously upon our family here before you. Once more we consecrate ourselves before you – our trials and joys – that our home may ever be the shrine of peace, purity, love and faith. Protect and bless all of us, both absent and present, and be merciful to those departed.

O Mary, loving Mother of Jesus, and our Mother, pray to Jesus for our family, for all the families of the world, to guard the cradle of the newborn, the schools of the young and their vocations.

O Joseph, holy guardian of Jesus and Mary, assist us by your prayers in all the necessities of life. Be present at the pillow of the sick and dying so that we may all be united to Jesus and Mary and you for all eternity.
Amen

Christmas Party
